THE RED DEATH MASK.

A VENETIAN LEGEND.

BY MARION MOULTON.

About the middle of the seventeenth century, there lived in Venice a certain haughty duke, so rich and powerful as to be feared by friend as well as foe; for that was a period of constant murder and assassination; and a mere whim, or unjust suspicion, was often sufficient to bring the deadly poison or secret stiletto to bear upon those supposed to be in highest favor.

It was the custom of this nobleman to give costly banquets in the great hall of his palace; but there was always one thing to mar the festivity of the occasion—the constant dread of some secret agent of death. It was known that of those who attended these feasts, some one or more generally died shortly after, and not unfrequently in a manner to lead to the suspicion of secret poison; and this knowledge filled the minds of all with dread; though none dared to remain away on this account, lest what they most feared should happen through the anger of him who was powerful enough to reach them anywhere in Venice.

And what tended still more to mystery and fear on these occasions of festivity, was the presence of the Red Mask. Next to the lord of the feast, on his left hand, always sat a silent, mysterious figure, in a red domino, with a blood-red mask concealing every feature. No one could say who he was, and only conjecture why he was there. His face was never seen—his voice was never heard. He ate and drank with the rest, but never spoke. Before the guests separated, he always rose, gave his hand to the noble host, and then went slowly, solemnly and silently around the table, shaking hands with each. This done, he glided out of the hall through a private door, and was not seen again till the reassembling of the guests at another banquet. All believed that he was the duke's secret poisoner, he was regarded with awe and dread, and came in time to be spoken of and known as the Red Death Mask. How his fatal purpose was effected, none could say; but it was conjectured that upon one of his jeweled fingers he wore what was known as the "Death Ring"—a ring curiously constructed with deadly poison in the interior—which could be injected by a sudden pressure upon a concealed spring, into the hand of any one taken in apparent friendship; and from the mortal effects of which—though no wound, however slight, could be discovered at the time—not all the medical skill of Venice could save the victim.

In the very zenith of his life and power, the duke one day received the singular intelligence, that a gentleman had made his appearance in Venice, so closely resembling him in face and figure that more than one person had mistaken him for his grace, and even some of his grace's friends had been thrown so much into doubt as to address the stranger for himself. To one as proud and haughty as the duke, the idea of another human being, in the whole wide world, looking like himself, was anything but pleasing; and the fact that this unknown counterpart was actually in Venice, causing great talk and wonder, was irritating in the extreme.

"Who is this adventurer? this base counterfeit?" angrily demanded the duke. "Of what nation is he? and what business brings him here?"

None could answer.

"Go, seek him out, and say it is my pleasure to see him at my palace!"

The stranger was found, and readily accepted the invitation of the nobleman, who received him in his private apartments, with only one attendant present.

The resemblance of the two was certainly very striking. Both were slenderly built, about five feet eight inches in height, of dark complexions, black hair and eyes, with slightly aquiline noses, cold, stern, haughty, sinister expressions, and between forty-five and fifty years of age. Each saw himself in the other, as in a glass; and to men of their peculiar temperaments the counterpart was not pleasing to either.

"Who are you?" demanded the duke, in an imperious tone.

"Your equal!" was the sharp reply.

"Sir, you forget your manners!"

"Sir, you have not shown any!"

"S'death, sirrah! do you know in whose presence you stand?" cried the duke.

"No more than yourself;" was the haughty answer.

"I am the Duke of Francavella!"

"And I the Count of Palmera!"

At the mention of this title, the attendant of the duke gave a slight, quick start, and fixed his eyes searchingly upon the stranger.

"I am glad at least to hear you are a nobleman," pursued the duke, "as the thought of having my likeness borne by a plebeian would have been too humiliating. It is said, count, and my eyes confirm the report, that you and I look remarkably alike, which is a fact very displeasing to me."

"And to me also, duke!"

"There should be but one such face in Venice, count!"

"So think I, duke!"

"I may hope then you will take early leave of our proud city!"

"I was in hopes your grace had made arrangements to quit this country!"

"You are insolent, count!"

"So are you, duke!"

"By the bones of St. Mark!" the duke began, in a malignant rage; but suddenly recollecting himself, he stopped, smothered down his anger, and added, in quite a different tone, with a forced smile: "Your pardon, count! I am too hasty. It is not the fault of either of us that we look alike and have tempers alike. If we cannot be friends, there is no need of our being enemies; but as the first provocation proceeded from me, I will hope to remove it by a proper apology, and trust we may be passing friends after all."

The count bowed and replied:

"I am disposed to meet your grace half way, in either anger or friendship."

"I thank your lordship! and trust you will honor my banquet, on Friday evening next, with your presence, when I will do myself the pleasure to introduce your lordship to some of the first nobles of Venice!"

"I will endeavor to be present and do myself that honor, so please your grace!" replied the count.

"'Tis well. Antonio (turning to his attendant) see that his lordship has proper conduct from the palace."

With polite bows, forced smiles, and suitable adieux, the Venetian and Spanish noblemen separated, each secretly hating the other with a bitter and deadly hate.

As Antonio left the presence of his noble master, he seized the first opportunity to say to the count:

"My lord, I have a private word for your ear."

"I listen."

"We are countrymen."

"Indeed?"

"Yes," pursued Antonio, speaking low and in Spanish, "I know your house well, and I would serve you. Your life is in danger here."

"So I believe."

"I think this banquet is given expressly to destroy you!"

"I had my fears."

"Yet, if you will come to it, and follow my instructions, you shall not only be saved, but may become the Duke of Francavella."

"How? speak!"

"Seem indifferent to my remarks, now, my lord—for all beneath this roof are spies upon each and every other—and if I be suspected of what I am saying, my life will not be worth a song. Have you ever heard of the Red Death Mask, my lord?"

"Never, to my knowledge."

"It is briefly this: On the nights of festivity, a figure in red domino and red mask sits near the duke. At the close of the feast, this figure shakes hands with all present, and it is rare that some one of the number does not die shortly after. Does your lordship comprehend?"

"I think I do—secret poison!"

"Through the Death-Ring, my lord!"

"Ah! well?"

"When this Red Mask takes your hand on that night, he will leave within it a paper of instruction, which you must find an opportunity to read in secret and follow to the letter."

"How do you know this?"

"I know it, my lord—that must suffice for the present. Will your lordship come and seize a dukedom?"

"But how that?"

"You shall know if you come."

"I will come—though how am I to know you mean me well?"

"If I meant you ill, my lord, what need to warn you?"

"True—it is enough—I will be here."

Punctual to the appointed time, the Count of Palmera appeared at the banquet of the Duke of Francavella. The Venetian received him with apparent pleasure, and, as he had promised, introduced him to many a noble guest. The feast began and the wine circulated freely. At the close came the hand-shaking round of the dreaded Red Death Mask. Scarcely one of all those present that did not turn pale at the though that perhaps his own time had come at last. The count, being a stranger, seemed the most indifferent of any, as was natural he should. He poured out more wine and drank, and then seemed to reflect. In this mood he held the small paper, which he had just received, in such a way that he could peruse it without being suspected. This paper contained these words:

"Feign illness, and be shown to a private apartment. I will be there to complete the design."

In a few minutes the duke, who had been furtively watching the count, remarked, with seeming concern, that he feared his lordship was ill.

The count certainly did appear rather faint, but affected to believe it only a temporary ailment, which would speedily pass away. The nobles exchanged glances, and each breathed freer as he fancied he had discovered the victim in other than himself.

But the count, instead of getting better, seemed to grow more faint, and his Kind host suggested that he should be shown to a private apartment and his chief physician be summoned.

"I will accept the kind offer of your grace, with many thanks!" said the count, in a low, faint tone.

"I will do myself the honor to attend your lordship!" was the courteous reply. "My lords and gentlemen, pray excuse a brief absence! I will shortly rejoin you."

He offered his arm to the count, who leaned heavily on it, and thus they left the hall. Passing through the ante room, they entered one hung with damask, and richly furnished. The Red Mask, who had left the banqueting hall before them, was standing there, as if awaiting their coming. As the duke assisted his guest to a divan, the Red Mask quietly closed and bolted the door. Then producing a small rope, with the slip knot of a hangman, he glided up to the duke, as he bent over the count, and throwing the noose around his neck, drew it tight, and strangled him before he could comprehend his murderous design and raise his voice for help. When the duke was quite dead, the mask was removed and the face of Antonio appeared before the count.

"Quick, my lord!" said Antonio, pale and trembling at what he had done; "disrobe, put on the dress of the duke, return to the hall, and be lord of the palace. If you succeed in deceiving the assembled guests—which I trust your close resemblance will enable you to do—we are safe; if you fail, we are lost! Leave the duke's body to me. I can put it forever beyond human sight, where its bones will keep company with those of more than one of his victims."

Assisted by Antonio, the Count of Palmera was soon dressed in the gorgeous robes of the Duke of Francavella, and the counterfeit was so perfect that none but a wife could have detected the difference.

"Remember your grace is now Duke of Francavella; and say your guest is much better, and will be well by to-morrow!" were the instructions of Antonio.

The plan of the iniquitous schemer succeeded perfectly, and all the guests that night retired in the belief that the false duke was the real.

The next day the Count of Palmera appeared in St. Mark's Place, and other parts of Venice, in his own proper person. This destroyed the suspicion that he had been poisoned, as all at the banquet believed; and those who had the night before taken leave of him as the Duke of Francavella, now congratulated him on his recovery as the Count of Palmera.

In fact, this proved to be one of the most successful and remarkable impostures ever known; and it was only through the dying confessions of the count himself that the truth came out at all, which many would not believe even then. Long before this event, however, the Red Death Mask had ceased to appear, because of the real death of Antonio, whom his new master had murdered in turn, for fear of being himself murdered or betrayed by the only one who possessed his fatal secret. So crime always leads on to crime.—Oriental Casket.

Hurled Out of the Air.

An aerolite that was likened in size to an old-fashioned churn was seen to fall from the sky into Jamaica Bay on Sunday, August 13th, according to statements made by a yachting party, who say that they witnessed the occurrence. The party consisted of three men and two boys residing in Jamaica. They are Chauncie Edwards, proprietor of a bakery on Fulton street; Joseph Wilkinson, a painter living in Harrison street; John Boyd, a clerk in the employ of Mr. Edwards, and Burr and Gouverneur Edwards, sons of Mr. Edwards. The first to discover the falling aesolite was Mr. Wilkinson. He describes the sight as follows:

"We had been fishing. After we got through we started toward the upper end of the bay for a sail. On the way a strong gale of wind overtook us from the southeast, and the yacht scudded along before it close reefed. I was at the stern steering. I looked up and suddenly saw a dark object moving rapidly through the air. It was travelling from the direction of the northeast. I only saw it for three or four seconds, as nearly as I could judge. At first it did not seem much larger than my two hands, but the nearer it got the bigger it appeared. When it was about 100 feet away from us it looked to be as big as a barrel. It came with great velocity, and struck the water about seventy-five feet distant from the yacht, and to the leeward. It seemed to be of dull grayish color, as far as I could determine. One of the party supposed, when he first saw it, that it was a boy's balloon. It struck the water with a thud, and the water spurted up as it disappeared. I feel pretty certain that it was an aerolite. What else could it have been?"

Mr. Edwards corroborated the statement of Mr. Wilkinson. He said that the attention of himself, Mr. Boyd, and his two sons was first attracted to the object by Mr. Wilkinson's exclaiming. "Look, look," and pointing in the air.

"I looked up with the rest," continued Mr. Edwards, "and I saw something that I took to be a toy balloon. It was coming with great swiftness right in the face of the strong wind, however, and I knew that a balloon could not travel that way. From the time we saw it until it disappeared in the bay was only a few seconds. There was a dark background of clouds, which threw it into bold relief, so that we had a good view of it. It was of a sort of dull grayish color, just as Mr. Wilkinson says. I suppose that it must have been glowing hot, and that if it had been night time it would probably have looked like a ball of fire."

"How big was it?"

"When it was close to us it looked as large as a flour barrel. I should compare it to an old fashioned milk churn in shape and size. It spread out at the head like wings."

"What time was it when you saw the object?"

"It was about 12 o'clock in the day on Sunday. It may have been a few minutes earlier."

"Did it make any noise as it passed through the air?"

"We did not hear any. If there was any whizzing, the strong wind prevented our hearing it. When the aerolite, or whatever it was, hit the water it made a thud, and threw the water in the air. We were about twenty-five feet distant from it. If it had struck our yacht I think it would have knocked us to pieces. It had a centrifugal motion."

Mr. Boyd's account of the spectacle on Sunday is substantially the same as that of his companions on the occasion. He says that it appeared as if the object was being hurled through the air. He never saw anything like it before. It was of a grayish color and as large as a barrel. He said that Mr. Wilkinson saw it first, and directed attention to it.

Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Edwards, and Mr. Boyd each agree that the object moved through the air at an angle of about forty degrees. The sons of Mr. Edwards both say that they saw the object move through the air and drop in the bay.

Mr. Wilkinson and the others describe the place where they saw the object as near North West Point of Finger Island, in Jamaica Bay. He adds that he noticed a hassock or bunch of sedge about ten feet from where the object went into the water. Where it fell the water is about five feet in depth at high tide. It is the intention of Mr. Wilkinson and Mr. Edwards to make a search of the locality and try to find the object.

A countryman on a visit to friends went a fishing. He caught a small pickerel. The fisherman was near-sighted and his mouth had the habit of standing ajar, and therefore, owing to the shortness of sight, the fisherman's mouth came very near the fish when it was unhooked. Unexpectedly, need one say, the fish, by a sudden jerk, unhooked itself, jumped into the man's mouth and made straight for his throat and ran part way in. A cat and a fish are alike in one respect—they cannot be pulled by the tail the wrong way of the fur or scale. When the man attempted to take out the fish his back fin stood up and interfered, and the man ran home to his friends, who pushed the fish down, and the fisherman had dined. You may rise up and denounce the foregoing as a base fabrication, but persons can be produced who will swear to the main facts in the case.—Providence Journal.

A Lexington (Ky.) youth, who went to work in the country, wrote his girl, a June graduate, that he was raising a calf. Imagine his feelings when the girl replied, "I am glad you have begun to support yourself."

The Man on the Cow Catcher.

THE EXTRA LOOK-OUT WHO MUST SOON RIDE ON OUR LIGHTNING PASSENGER LOCOMOTIVES.

"The time is not far off when every locomotive drawing a passenger train on every busy railroad will have a pilot. This pilot will have no more to do with the engine itself than the pilot of a ferryboat. His duty will be simply to look ahead and communicate with the engineer in the cab." The man who uttered this prophecy was not a sentimentalist, but a very busy, practical railroad man, in charge of twice as many, if not three times as many trains as any other man on the Atlantic coast.

"The pace has been rapidly getting hotter and hotter in railroading," he continued, "until every improvement the human mind can suggest is adopted as fast as it is thought of, and the big roads are like so many sets of the most perfectly adjusted clockwork. Every device for switching, signalling, ballasting, taking water or coal, and, above all, making speed, is the subject of constant study and improvement, two things being kept in view always and in all things—saving time and preventing accident. Between New York and the big cities within a few hours' ride of it the tracks are dotted with trains running like mad. If there is the least flaw in anything—engine, cars, track, switches, signals, time tables, or what not—there is likely to be a smash up. So much time and money are spent in guarding against the possibility of accident that serious ones are very rare. But in the midst of all this race for perfection the engineer is as he was at first. He is unimproved. He is only a man, and the best man can only do so much. An engineer was all that was wanted a few years ago, but now it is different. The engineer of to-day has got more than he can do. Somebody must ease him of some of his load.

"So," continued the raiload man. "I predict that every passenger locomotive will soon carry a pilot. I don't know where he'll be—whether on the cab or in front of the cab over the boiler, or in front of the boiler over what we now call the pilot and you call the cow-catcher, but he will be carried on every locomotive that carries trains at a high rate of speed, and he will watch the signals, switches, bridges, highways and junctions, and do nothing else, while the engineer runs his engine.

"As it is, the engineer may be trying his water gauge just when he should be looking at a signal. There are half a hundred neccessary things he may be doing that will take his eyes off the road for an instant. He will miss a signal, and a wreck will be the result. Mind, I don't say what has happened. I am not going to tell tales out of school. I only say it will happen."

"Can't the firemen on fast trains get into the way of helping their engineers more and more as time goes on?"

"No. They, too, have all they can do. The faster the train, the more they have to work. Nothing can be looked for from them. The only thing is, as I tell you, a third man in a little house of his own ahead of or over the engineer with a bell rope communicating with a gong in the cab. You'll see him there in a very few years."

The Government an Oligarchy of Rich Men.

The government is "an oligarchy of rich men;" for even when we find a man of moderate means in office the chances are ten to one that he owes his election to rich men and that in whatsoever he does he will recognize, so far as his creditors demand, the indebtedness thus created. The evil is great, widespread and increasing. It is not confined to the Federal elections, but has become common to all elections. If a candidate for Governor is to be selected, the first question is: "Can he afford to run?" If he has no money to spend or no monied friends to spend it for him, and thereby establish a lien on him, he is set aside, no matter what his qualifications may be, or even what his availability in a partisan sense may be. Lacking money, he has, in fact, neither qualifications nor ability. It is the same thing on a smaller scale in the smaller offices. The actual candidate almost invariably represents a monied man, or monied clique, and votes in open or secret obedience to his superior. That all this is very bad need scarcely be said. It is demoralizing, in the first place, to have the nominal servants of the public the real servants of a small faction, for the rich are a small faction, compared with the poor, and the men whose means are too moderate to permit of their indulgence in the luxury of running for office. The open purchase of office adds to the demoralization by destroying public confidence in the integrity of the office-holder. Moreover, it is a positive evil to have the government in the hands of the rich. It would be if they attained control without resort to corrupt means. It is so because the interests of the rich, as a rule, are opposed to those of the poor; and the poor are in the vast majority. We do not mean by this that there is any necessary antagonism between capital and labor, because there is none. Each is necessary to the other, and there can be no true prosperity for either unless it is shared by the other. But if capital has full control of the government, if capital makes and administers the laws, the government and the laws will inevitably be in the interests of capital, as capital understands those interests, without any reference to labor's understanding of those interests, or of its own. Such is really the state of affairs to-day in the national government and most of State and municipal governments. Monopolies of all kinds are protected and strengthened, and in return for their protection and strengthening they furnish the means to maintain their servants in power.—Detroit Free Press.

"Could anything be better than this pure fluid for the inner man?" said Ex Governor Hoffman, at Saratoga, the other morning, lifting his glass and looking as solemnly at it as though he had never secreted a ninth julep or anything of that variety. "Nothing," said Ex-Mayor Vaux, of Philadelphia; "I've drank this water for forty years, and must say that it is the best, the purest and the safest spring water in the world—it's almost as good as Philadelphia whiskey!

Fog.

August is the great month of the year for fogs. They are supposed to be born in the Bay of Fundy. Their paternal ancestors are icebergs from the North Pole. They take after their fathers and grandfathers in nature, being cold, damp and disagreeable. At a distance they are picturesque; they are creatures of surprise; they lay in ambush; they come pouring over outlying islands like a horde of vandals; they settle upon the sea like a supereminent sea, allowing the masts of schooners to prick through; suddenly they lift and take flight in a myriad little vanishing clouds, or else, when they are dense one instant they have disappeared the next. One day they hover just outside the offing, tossed into fantastic peaks and mountains, and the superstitious might almost fancy it was a paradise inviting exploration. A sudden shift of the wind, and lo, the sun disappears and the trees are filled with grey moisture and begin to drop from every little twig.

Fogs are profuse. They hide a landscape for a week at a time. The finer the landscape the more sure they are to spoil it. If an unlucky visitor has only one day for sight seeing they are on hand that one day, even if they had not been nigh for a month. If a land is dried up with drought then the fog drifts in tantalizingly, refuses to condense into rain but mocks at the thirsty herbage. It deposits a glistening newdrop on the back of the fraudulent potato-bug, but the tuber blow is left to question the mysteries of the future.

Fog is often used as a mental simile. We say that a man's mind is befogged. A mean lawyer is called a pettifogger, doubtless because he is petty and puts other people, his unfortunate clients, into a fog, that is into such a condition that they are bewildered and misled, without being conscious of it. Most men are in this state, some in regard to one thing and some in regard to another. Questions of politics bewilder one set of men; others are under a heavy cloud of doub

Calling names is not first-class campaigning. But there is a curiously clever euphony in the country editor's conceit of calling the Democratic candidate for Governor "Kassidy's Kid." —Philadelphia Bulletin. And there is no less euphony or truth in calling anothor candidate "Kameron's Kalf," or "Don's Donkey," or "Grant's Goat." —Record.

Benjamin H. Hill, of Georgia, who died on Wednesday of last week, was 59 years of age. He was elected as Senator of the United States, from Georgia in 1877, which position he still retained. His death is not only a loss to the State from which he was sent, but because of his liberal views, is a sad calamity for the whole nation. During his stay in the Senate he has been of much good to his country.

The steamer Republic left the Race street wharf, Philadelphia, on Monday morning, having on board from 1500 to 2000 excursionists en route for Cape May. At Cross Ledge Light the crossheads of the engine were broken and the party were taken back to Philadelphia on board the Felton. They reached their homes next morning at 9:30, but should have returned at 2 the afternoon before. Quite a great deal of excitement was caused by their delay, as the party consisted of a Sunday school, mostly women and children.

The Altoona Tribune said some time ago that "it ought to be soon evident to Republican leaders that the party cannot long stand the scandalous conduct of this man Hubbel. Let him be suppressed at once." But he was not suppressed. On the contrary, he is getting ready to be elected to the United States Senate, and the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania proposes to put where it will do most good the money raised by Hubbel's blackmail levy on the matrons and nurses, ostlers and laborers, the crippled soldiers and pensioners who happen to be on the government pay roll.

Arrangments are being made for celebrating the bi-centennial anniversary of the landing of William Penn at Philadelphia, in October. On the first or civic day there will be at least 25,000 participants. On the trades day it is expected that at least 50,000 men of all branches of industry, with tools, machinery, etc., will be in line. On musical day 3,000 musicians will be on the platform, including Welsh and German societies from all parts of the Union. On October 27th 10,000 soldiers of the state, and visiting associations, together with 10,000 members of the G. A. R., will take part in a grand military pageant.

If Beaver had been a strictly honest and conscientious man he would either have represented the sentiment of his constituents or have declined to go as a representative. To accept the position of delegate, and then support his personal preferences in opposition to the positive instructions of his constituents, was certainly dishonest and warrants the inference that he will practice the same deception on the people of this State if he should be elected Governor. If he desires to express and represent his individual preferences he should remain in a private station where nobody will question his right to do as he pleases.—Wilkes Barre Record (Rep).

Pattison's age is the cause of some little talk among the Republicans, for the reason that they can find no fault with which to accuse the man. But this objection is so trivial when it is thoroughly inquired into, that very few seem to entertain it. In fact those who attained to any degree of eminence showed signs of their ability in early life and were entrusted with the duties of office at a very early age. W. H. Seward was but 33 years of age when he was nominated for governor of New York. DeWitt Clinton was elected to the United States Senate from New York when he was but 33. Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence when 33, and was elected governor of Virginia at 36. Webster, Clay, Calhoun and Hamilton had become men of great prominence when they were only 32.

Beaver and the Soldiers.

It seems that the Republican candidate for governor has offended some of his party, and especially those who were as good soldiers as himself. On trying to make political capital out of his military record, the falsity of some of his pretensions is exposed by the Bellefonte Watchman, an influential and responsible newspaper published at his own home. From this it appears that, like many other politicians, Beaver is "the soldier's friend" when he has an axe to grind.

The Watchman says that until Beaver became an anxious aspirant for the office of governor he would never have anything to do with the Grand Army of the Republic. "As soon as he became an aspirant for office he made application and was admitted as a member, and a number of gentlemen hereabouts, who were original members, strongly suspected at the time, that he entered it for no other purpose than to try to use it for his own political advancement. The suspicions that were aroused when he was first taken into the order have been varied, and the members of that organization can know exactly why he enrolled himself as a member and took the pledges required by its own constitution.

"That he has any particular claim on the members of his own regiment that would secure their pledge to vote for him but few of them will admit. In the service he was distant, autocratic and domineering toward his men; since their return home he has scarcely known or recognized them. For a number of years he has been the leader of the Republican party in the county—recognized as such by his party at home and treated as such by officials abroad. His word has been law to the Republican voters, and his request whold have secured the appointment of any one he named to any position that he desired him to occupy. We ask, what has he done for his old soldiers or for any soldier that would place them under obligations to him now? He has had the entire control of the federal patronage within the county for the past four years. How many soldiers has he put in position during the time? With over fifty postoffices, revenue offices and other places to fill, not five of them are presided over by soldiers.

"The only soldiers we know of occupying official positions within the county are David Glenn, A. H. Miller, Capt. Vanvalin and Colonel Stewart. of these, Miller got his position through the efforts of Ed Blanchard, and Vanvalin was appointed before Beaver took any part in politics. He may have signed Glenn's application for place, and we believe he secured Stewart's appointment of postmaster at the state college, although to do so he was compelled to have removed a very estimable and deserving lady, who had filled the place for many years. Outside of these, can any one point to a single soldier occupying a paying place in Centre county? Beaver's asking it would have secured for Capt. Bayard the post-office at this place. Yet it, the best paying office in the county, is filled by Mr. John Johnston, who soldiered less than the writer of this article, and that was mighty little.

"Since his return from the army the Democrats have had upon their ticket a number of soldiers, and their competitors have mostly been civilians. In not a single instance did he vote for one of them. Last fall the Republicans of the county had two candidates for commissioners—the one a soldier, the other a civilian, and it is a notorious fact that Gen. Beaver's influence, efforts and sympathies were thrown against the soldier, Mr. Campbell, a member of his own old regiment, the 148th, and in favor of Mr. Rankin, who remained at home.

"Such has been Mr. Beaver's record of friendship for the support of soldiers here at home. The soldiers of the county know it, the people know it, and when we now hear that a large number of Republican soldiers positively refuse to sign a pledge to vote for him it is neither strange nor unexpected. In fact it would be exceedingly strange if it were otherwise."

A Friend of the Workingmen and Farmers.

A correspondent writing to the Farmer's Friend & Grange Advocate, the official paper of the Grange in Pennsylvania, published at Mechanicsburg, Cumberland county, speaks of Hon. Silas M. Clark as follows:

He owns and cultivates a large farm adjoining the borough of Indiana. Although not a member of the Grange, is the friend of the farmer and workingman. Such men are seldom nominated for office, and the farmer and workingmen afforded an opportunity to secure a representative. He has been for several years, and now is, president of the Indiana county agricultural society, and devotes time in the improvement and encouragement of the interests of the agricultural class. He is president of the State Normal school, and has acquired a reputation through the State as an educator and benefactor. Is a clear methodical and logical reasoner, with a broad, comprehensive, and discriminating and judicial mind. Is one of the ablest lawyers of the State and engaged in a varied and extensive practice for twenty-five years.

The Shoe that Pinches.

The success of Robert E. Pattison, as a practical reformer, is the shoe that pinches the feet of the Bosses. From the way it hurts them they must have corns. They did not enter the campaign provided with defence against an assult of this kind. No man, be he a boss or otherwise, likes to have his corns pinched. How they worry over this line of Democratic attack. When they read the reform record of Mr. Pattison, they become almost as furious as a bull when a red flag is flaunted at him. They can't stand it. It would not be half so bad, did it not carry with it a stern rebuke. After an unobstructed, and almost unquestioned, control of public administration for twenty years, they have not a single reform to present the people. It is too much to bear, when they realize that the great reformer of the day is a Democrat, and a young man at that. Let us look at his record; it is the nicest kind of reading for tax payers. Since Mr. Pattison has been in the controller's office—and put there by the joint votes of Democrats and Republicans, mind that ye bosses and political machinists—his efficient service have promoted the cause of municipal reform and affected:

1st. A steady reduction of the city debt.

2d. A reduction in the department expenses.

3d. A reduction in the tax-rate.

This is a great record; a record few men can show. Few old, experienced, administrators of the public service can show such well doing; but when it belongs to a young man, it is worthy of all acceptation.

Why are the Bosses so silent over Beaver's reform record? Has he any? Unfortunately he has a record, and the record is not a good one. As president of the board of trustees of the Pennsylvania Agricultural college, he had every opportunity to institute reform in that institution—but he did not. He shut eyes and ears to complaints, and let the institution be run along in the same old rut. About half a million of dollars have been squandered, and worse than nothing accomplished. If Beaver could not introduce reforms into an agricultural college, how can he do it in the State goverament? There is only one safe course to pursue—elect Pattison governor. His record is known; he is no pretender; he gets right down to the hardpan of true reform, by saving money for the people. This is the way to do it, and this is the way it will continue when Pattison becomes governor. He has been stopping leaks through mouse holes in the controller's office, but he will find rat holes in Harrisburg His reform stop per will stop them up. The people have been fed so long on spread eagle promises they are disgusted; they want more substantial food, which they will get in Pattison. He was nominated because of the splendid record he had already made, and not because of promises. His past is his guarntee for the future—Doylestown Democrat.

The Outlook on the Northern Tier.

A Republican writing to the Philadelphia Press says; "I have recently been traveling through the counties of Potter, Tioga and Bradford, and have been taking pains to get the expressions of the Republicans on the present deplorable condition of the Republican party in the State. You would be surprised to know how well informed the people are on this subject. I find Independents wherever I have been, and the Republicans who are giving their support to this Independent movement are not disappointed office seekers, but quite the contrary; thev are Republicans who never before knew what it was to oppose their party. They now say they are not responsible for the present break in the party, but claim that Cameron, Quay & Co., are, they having ruled the party in such a manner and by such methods as to drive them from it. They have been waiting in vain to have the much-desired reform brought about within the party lines; but they say the last regular State Convention showed no signs of reform steps being taken, and consequently feel justifiable in taking the position they have. They hold Hoyt's administration responsible for the pardoning of Kemble and others, and say a vote for General Beaver—standing on the platform which he does—a part of which "heartily approves Governor Hoyt's administration," would be a vindication of the members of the Pardon Board for their action in pardoning these men."

N. P. Moore, Esq., of Buckhorn, was in town on Wednesday.

John C. Yocum, Esq., of Catawissa, was in town on Tuesday.

A. G. Kimberly of Berwick called at this office on last Friday.

Mr. J. W. Dilley left for his home in the West on Saturday of last week.

Mr. E. B. Yordy, and wife, of Wilkes Barre, were in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. Chance and Mrs. Wills of Philadelphia are the guests of Mrs. Wm. Kreamer.

Mr. Bryson, candidate for the Legislature, was in town on Thursday.

Mr. Reber, of Lewisburg, was visiting his son, Dr. Reber, this week.

Mrs. Nellie Sheep of Washington, D. C. is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Kate Sheep, on East street.

Mr. Gaius Halsey Esq. of Wilkes Barre, who was visiting Mr. C. H. Campbell, called at our office on Saturday.

A. R. Bacon of Wilkes Barre was in town last week. He is an active man, and his musical instruments are the best.

H. V. White will start for Philadelphia next Monday on business. While there he expects to take a flying trip to the beach.

Mr. G. M. Quick, Deputy Prothonotary, is taking a week "off," Matthew certainly needs a rest and we wish him a pleasant time.

J. E. Aikman and niece, Miss Clara Aikman, of Centre, started for the cool spots along the Jersey shore last Monday. They expect to spend some time in quest of rest and recreation, and will undoubtedly return very much—worn out?

Mrs. Isaiah Melick who had been visiting friends here, started for her home in Dickson, Lee county, Ill., last Wednesday. Mrs. Creasy, a sister of Mrs. Melick's, gave a dinner party on Tuesday which was largely attended by old friends, thus making the last hours in old Columbia pass pleasantly.

W. L. White, of Centre, returned last Friday from a visit among his relatives and friends in the West. He left this county October first of last year, going as far west as Iowa and spending some time in each state he passed through, returning via Canada, Niagara Falls and New York City. Will reports a good time.

The Campaign Columbian.

We will send the COLUMBIAN to any address in the county, from now until after the fall election for 30 cents. As this will be an unusually interesting campaign every Democratic voter should take a paper and keep himself posted. There is not a man in the county who cannot afford to take the COLUMBIAN at that price, and we hope to receive many orders. Postage stamps can be sent by mail.

A little child of Mrs. H. Broadt was buried on Monday afternoon.

Spectacles and eye glasses, to suit all ages, at L. Bernhard's Jewelry store.

A heavy harvest is the sign of a hard winter. Look up your overcoats.

New styles of calling cards and card type just received at the COLUMBIAN office.

The Northumberland county fair will be held at Sunbury, September 26, 27, 28 and 29th.

A telephone line has been constructed connecting Shickshinny with the Wilkes Barre exchange.

The brick work for the first story of James Barton's new building on Main street is completed.

There is a rumor that Barnum will be in Sunbury in the beginning of October with his mammoth show.

Remember the entertainment of the Agnes Wallace Villa combination on next Thursday evening, Aug., 31.

There seems to be an epidemic among the cats in this section. They are suddenly taken sick, and die in a short time.

The citizens in Northumberland county are making extra efforts to give a first-class exhibition at their annual fair this fall.

The promises of a large crop of grapes this fall is blasted by the fruit being attacked with rot. This complaint comes from all sections and it is feared the abundant crop which all were anticipating will be fully one-half destroyed.

DEDICATION.—The new M. E. Church at Chestnut Grove, Rohrsburg circuit will be dedicated next Sunday August 27th. Rev. W. W. Evans and Rev. R. E. Wilson will be present. Preaching at 10 A. M., 3 P. M. and 7½ P. M. All are invited.

It is probable that the M. E. Church will be ready for services on September 10th. The committee endeavored to have their services begin on some other date but find that at this date is the only one that will suit all ministers who expect to be present. Should any change be made we will give due announcement.

Just received a new lot of Elgin, Waltham, Springfield and other make of watches in open and hunting cases, warranted from two to five years.

Also silver plated teaspoons one dollar a set, table spoons two dollars a set, at L. Bernhard's Jewelry Store. 6 9-tf

F. B. Hartman, Secretary of the Agricultural society, is preparing the premium list for our county fair which will be published next week. Extra premiums will be offered, and everything done to make the exhibition this fall the largest it has ever been. It will be held October 11, 12, 13 and 14th.

Stephen H. Wolf did not announce his name in the COLUMBIAN as candidate for Sheriff before the delegate election. It is much less likely that he would come to this paper after his defeat, to announce himself as an Independent. All the money he spends as an Independent is useless.

An excursion train was run to Danville on last Friday night, to give passengers an opportunity of hearing Dr. Guard, of Baltimore, lecture on the subject, "Ingersolism." Quite a number of our citizens went to hear the lecture, and report it as an excellent one. Dr. Guard has earned a wide reputation, and on this occasion he sustained himself.

The Lutheran congregation have been notified that Sunday, September 10th, is the day appointed for again holding services in their church. The work of repairing is fast being completed. The papering is all done and a large portion of the painting. A few days yet will finish the work. The pipe organ is placed and ready for the choir.

There is some talk of soon connecting the Danville exchange, Milton exchange, Williamsport exchange and Wilkes Barre exchange, so as to afford our citizens an opportunity of communicating by telephone with people in any places in the above exchanges. Whether this is all talk now we know not, but it certainly will afford a chance for talk should these arrangements be made.

Pine Grove Sunday School picnic, held Saturday 19th., was quite a brilliant affair. The school, with suitable banners flying, marched to the ground singing "We are marching to Zion &c." The children were first served with dinner, and then a general invitation was extended to all to dine. Then came a literary exercise consisting of Select Reading, Declamations &c. A choir furnished good music.

Pens, pencils, pen holders, ink, rubbers mucilage in great variety at the COLUMBIAN store

Quite a number of new dwelling houses are in course of erection in our borough. They are needed. Although more houses have been built since the fire than were burned, the demand is still largely in excess of the supply. It is to be hoped that many more buildings will be up ere cold weather sets in—all of which will at once be occupied even to the number of one hundred. So long as a scarcity prevails there is little hope of a reduction of rents which are now enormously high.—Miltonian.

Mount Joy has formed a Law and order League who have posted up and distributed on the streets a circular which reads as follows:

"The Law and order League hereby gives notice that the laws against profanity will be strictly enforced. All citizens are requested to bring information and assist in rooting out this pernicious practice."

It would be well to form such a League in every community.

A census bulletin is being issued from the Government Printing Office giving the population and males over twenty-one years of age in each county. Columbia county is given as follows: Total population 32,409. White 32,264, colored 145. Native white males over 21 years of age, 6968; foreign, 829; colored, 40; making a total voting population of 7,837. In 1880 the total vote cast in this county was 7054, or 783 less than the census makes it.

The new Miners' Hospital at Drifton, Pa. erected by Messrs. Coxe, Bros. & Co., is about completed. Mr. H. D. Miller who has been in the Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, will be the principal nurse in this institution. He has already taken up his residence in the building and is superintending the interior arrangements. The building contains 22 rooms, with proper ventilation and light, gas and water in every room, and the entire building heated by steam. Dr. Dobson, a graduate of the University of Philadelphia, is to be the resident surgeon. Dr. Wentz, who is well-known throughout the mining region as a surgeon of great skill, will have the management of the Hospital.

Time books, for a week or month, memorandum and account books of all kinds can be found at the COLUMBIAN store.

The work of repairing in the M. E. Church is about completed. The ceilings are beautifully painted in water colors, while the sides are of oil finish. An entire new pulpit is built, which is about fifteen or eighteen inches high. This is supplied with a suit of furniture of the latest pattern. Near the pulpit, at one side of the church, is a small elevation enclosed with neat railing which will be used by members of the choir. The entire work in this room corresponds well with the painted walls which are beautiful indeed. In the first room, or that set apart for the Sunday school, new seats of modern pattern are arranged, and a neat chair, which can be moved to suit the comfort of the occupant, is supplied for each teacher. The Infant department and bible class are separated from the school room proper by means of glass partitions which can be raised or lowered, and allows of uniting all departments for opening and closing exercises. The entire building is heated by steam.

Quite a large crowd gathered at the fair grounds on last Saturday afternoon to witness the races which were announced for that time. Arrangements were made for three different trots, the gentlemen's roadsters, the sporting list and the colt race. There was a great deal of surprise occasioned by the trotting of "Black Cloud," owned by Sheriff Ent. Very few supposed him to be so free an animal, but when he came in so far ahead of the rest and his time recorded, the Sheriff was much complimented on owning such an animal. The following is the list of trotters:

In the first trot, or gentlemen's roadsters, there were three entries: Stephen Knorr, (Gray Chief); W. Hartzell, (Bay Bill); Lon. Ent, (Black Cloud). The first was taken by Lon. Ent, time 2:42. The second by W. Hartzell.

In the sporting list were four entries: Wm. Allen, (Charley C.); Will Hartzell, (Lucy); Samuel Prentiss, (Pet); C. Armstrong, (White Foot). The first was won by W. Hartzell, time 2:53; second by Wm. Allen; third, C. Armstrong.

In the colt race there were three entries: Samuel Prentiss, W. Whetstone and J. Wintersteen. The first was taken by W. Whetstone, in the first heat in 3:25. In the second heat J. Wintersteen entered the race and came in first in 3:20.

A Turkey Buzzard.

On Monday of last week as the Switch-Back car was returning towards Mauch Chunk, Mr. Harry Mumford saw a huge turkey buzzard standing on the track near Hackelbirnie. The buzzard was eating a smaller bird which it had just caught, and did not leave the track until the car was nearly on it. When it heard the noise of the car it gave a croak and flew away. Its wings when expanded reached outside the rails between which it stood, and measured over six feet from tip to tip. It behooves farmers to look out for their poultry.—Mauch Chunk Democrat.

Catawissa Items.

Dr. L. B. Kline's health is improving slowly, but he is not yet out of danger.

The Water Company completed their surveys on Monday of this week and the next thing in order is to get the water into town. The people have depended long enough on Providence to do their sprinkling.

Dramatic Season.

The dramatic season will be opened by the Agnes Wallace Villa Combination, who will appear in the Opera House on next Thursday evening, Aug., 31st. This troupe gave an entertainment to our people two years ago, which was much appreciated, and this year comes among us newly organized and promise a rare treat for those who will sieze the opportunity to attend. In places where they have given two performances, the second evening's entertainment always drew large houses. Remember, they give only one entertainment, so if you wish an evening of enjoyment be sure and attend. The following taken from the Scranton Daily Times gives a short description of their acting:

The entertainment given in Music Hall last evening by the Agnes Villa Company was patronized by the people of Pittston better than any other dramatic performance given here this season; in fact, the hall was almost packed to such an extent as to be uncomfortable. The play opened with Sam B. and Little Lucie in the drama of "Miss Multon," and, from the moment the curtain raised until the close of the fifth act, the performance was watched with the deepest interest. As Sarah Multon, Agnes W. Villa created genuine admiration, and furnished ample proof that she is a leading star in her profession. Throughout the play she was ably supported. Sam B. Villa is, to say the least, an excellent comedian, as was fully demonstrated in the laughable after-piece, in three scenes, entitled "H. R. H. Pocahontas." The burlesque was the most enjoyable we have witnessed on the boards of Music Hall this season, and was highly appreciated by the audience.—Scranton (Pa.) Daily Times.

The Meteors of the Dog Days.

The August meteors made a fine display this year, and attracted much attention, even from those who ordinarily care little for star gazing. On Thursday and Friday nights the meteors fell probably at the rate of a hundred in an hour. Many were so small that they seemed, as they darted across the sky, to be mere lines of light. A large number left phosphorescent trails which were seen to curl, break up, and gradually fade several seconds after the meteors han disappeared. One, seen in the eastern heavens at ten o'clock on Thursday night, appears to have been of extraordinary size and brilliancy. It is described as looking as large as the full moon on the horizon. It was heart-shaped, and the broader end appeared to spread out into flames, in which blue and red hues were conspicuous. It seemed to fall straight downward, but this was unquestionably an effect of perspective. No explosion was witnesssed and no noise heard.

No one who watched the meteors long could fail to notice how their paths radiated from a common centre in the constellation Perseus. During the five days that the earth occupies in traversing the meteor stream, which is in some places about 8,000,000 miles broad, the number of these bodies that entered our atmosphere, and were consumed by the intense heat developed by friction against the particles of the air, must have been enormous. If they were not thus consumed, a shower of meteors would be a menace to human life. The amount of debris they leave floating in the air, in the shape of meteoric dust and other products of combustion, is comparatively insignificant, and yet yet not too small to be perceptible. Meteoric dust is continually finding its way slowly down to the earth's surface, and it is found even in the ooze of the sea bottom. A plate, coated with some sticky substance, and exposed to the air at a considerable elevation, and in localities where ordinary dust is not likely to be found, will collect particles of meteoric iron, especially after the earth has passed through a stream like that of the August or November meteors.

It is a fact of great interest that meteors are probably bodies which have been expelled from the stars as well as from our own sun. Thus we are able to put our hands upon substances which have actually come from the sidereal universe, and have been vaporous constituents in the whirling furnace of a sun.—N. Y. Sun.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

*Why is Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound like the Mississippi river in a spring freshet? Because the immense volume of this healing river moves with such momentum that it sweeps away all obstacles and is literally flooding the country.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

The cheapest medicine in use is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because so very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, wheth er used for bathing the chest or throat, for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound.

SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without a parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee, a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a Cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cts, and $1.00. If your Lungs are sore, Chest, or Back, Lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by J. H. Kinports. may 5 eow

Nerves, brain, and muscles gain strength and the power of endurance by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

A SKILLFUL PREPARATION

Composed of roots, barks, and plants, that act in harmony, and are a pleasant and effective medicine, constitute Burdock Blood Bitters, of which highly commendatory reports are being constanly received. Price $1.00.

*,Presumption begins in ignorance and ends in ruin." On the other hand, the production of Kidney-Wort began with wise cautions and scientific research, and its use ends in restoring shattered constitutions and endowing men and women with health and happiness. "My tormented back," is the exclamation of more than one poor hardworking man and woman; do you know why it aches? It is because your kidneys are over-tasked and need strengthening, and your system needs to be cleansed of bad humors. You need Kidney-Wort.

☞No family Dyes were ever so popular as the Diamond Dyes. They never fail. The black is far superior to logwood. The other colors are brilliant.

DYSPEPSIA AND LIVER COMPLAINT.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of these distressing complaints, if you think so call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer, every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by J. H. Kinports. may 12-eow.

We have a speedy and positive cure for catarrh, diptheria, canker mouth and headache, in Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. A nasal injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cents. Sold by J. H. Kinports. may 12-eow.

STRENGTH FOR MIND AND BODY.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body.

IT SEEMS TO SATISFY

A family want, and I wonder how we ever got along without Parker's Ginger Tonic. It cured me of nervous prostration, and I have used it since for all sorts of complaints in our family. Mrs. Jines, Albany.

The Tomato.

The tomato, like every other vegetable, has its ups and downs, now extolled as having all the medicinal virtues to be found in nature, and now deemed as positively injurious to health. The truth, as in most cases, lies between the extremes. It is a wholesome vegetable, remedial in many cases, but should not be used immoderately. Pure cold water is injurious if drunk to excess, and so is bread injurious if eaten without moderation. The Australian Medical Journal says:

This fruit exhibits one remarkable property in connection with plant diseases, which suggests its use as a germicide and a protector against those disorders, so many of which we now know derive their origin from bacteria and allied germs. If a tomato shrub be uprooted at the end of the season and allowed to wither on the bough of a fruit tree, or if it be burned beneath, it will act not only as a curative, but protective against blight and similar attacks. This hostility to low organisms is due to the presence of sulphur, which is rendered up in an active condition in the decay or burning. Remembering that digestion also splits up the tomato into its chemical constituents and releases sulphur, probably in a nascent condition, and probably in the intestinal canal, it may have as great potency there as experiments prove it to have outside the body. Summer diarrhœa, English cholera, and typhoid fever are all due to low organisms. As the diarrhœal and typhoid seasons are luckily contemporaneous with the fruiting of the tomato, it is not unreasonable to assume that tomato-eaters would be more than ordinarily likely to escape such diseases. It is worth noting that typhoid fever is most prevalent among the poor, to whom this expensive vegetable is almost unknown. Sailors, too, just after landing, are particularly liable to typhoid, and in them we may always assume a more or less scorbutic condition. But the question of the protection against disease by certain diets, and by such habits as the use of alcohol, tobacco, and opium, has as yet been hardly inquired into. Experiments are now being made on the tincture of the tomato, which will help in determining its therapeutic value. Meanwhile, eaten cooked with hot meats, and in the form of salad after a cold lunch, it is a pleasant and useful addition to our ordinary regimen.

A Seed Chapter.

WHAT GRASSES TO SOW.—It takes a person almost a lifetime to find out useful facts about farming. The experience of others is of the greatest importance to all. The following extract about grasses will be of interest to our readers.

"An important point in laying down land is to select such grasses and clovers as are most suitable. Thus all the varieties possess affinities for particular soils, and the success or failure of the future pasture or meadow depends very largely on the selection of suitable seeds. For instance, "meadow catstail" reveals in heavy, wet loam, but perishes on chalk and sand. "Crested dogstail" will yield its full return of valuable cattle food on the chalk marls and light loams, but soon dies out on a cold clay. "Sweet vernal grass" produces its beautifully scented blossoms on the lighter loams and medium sands, but on a wet, black soil soon ceases to exist. "Perennial white clover" will fatten sheep to perfection on rich land, but on poor soils will scarcely be worth sowing. Similar observations will prove true of other kinds."

LENGTH OF VITALITY OF SEEDS.—Although garden seeds, originally good and carefully preserved, will often germinate and grow at a much greater age than that given in the following table, their vitality is likely to be more or less impaired, as proved by practical experiment, which has fixed upon the figures cited as covering the limits of safty:

	Years.		Years.
Beans,	1	Parsley,	3
Beet,	5	Parsnip,	1
Cabbage	4	Peas (round)	2
Carrot,	2	Peas (wrinkled)	1
Cauliflower,	3	Pepper,	2
Celery,	3	Pumpkins,	4
Corn,	2	Radish,	4
Egg plant,	2	Squash,	4
Cucumber,	5	Spinach,	2
Lettuce,	3	Tomato,	5
Melon,	5	Turnip,	5
Onion,	2	Salsify,	2

SPARSE SEEDING—The fault of the majority of people is that they sow seed too thick. Enough seed is put on one acre to do two acres with. Not only is the seed saved, but the quality of grain is best when the plants stand sparsely. In root crops, also, the roots or tubers are, within certain limits, larger, the greater the space allotted to their growth. In general, the production of plants increases with the size of the space, because abundance of room implies enough of light, heat and moisture, and such a healthy condition of the plant that is capable of resisting parasites.—Tribune & Farmer.

Vegetable Seeds to Sow Soon.

How many people who possess plenty of room in their gardens, or ought to have plenty, deprive themselves of some of our choicest vegetables a large portion of the time by merely neglecting to take advantage of the season to prepare a few small beds and sow the seeds? If you go into their gardens and on looking around and seeing, at the latter end of September, no lettuce or radishes growing, and ask where they are the reply is, "We never raise them at this time of the year; we didn't know they would do," &c. The fact is, lettuce can now be sown with certainty in drills, to head late in autumn; and if transplanted into cold frames, we can have heads at Christmas and generally through the winter. The China and Spanish radish should be sown now for winter use, and bury in small pits as we do beets.

For early spring use, Lettuce seed should be sown the first or second week in October, and when the plants are well started, transplant in a sheltered place, forming ridges six to eight inches high, and setting them about a foot apart half way up the ridge. When cold whether approaches cover the rows lightly with straw, and place a few bean-poles upon the straw to keep it in place. If well attended to it will be plenty of good solid heads at the beginning of April, and some can be cut in March before heading. Coming at these periods, this vegetable is very acceptable and wholesome.—Germantown Telegraph.

How often persons have been annoyed by burrs clinging to their dress or clothing, and how seldom have they, when cleaning them, given it a thought that Burdock Root is the most valuable blood cleanser and purifier known, and is sold by every druggist, under the name of Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00.

Cheap Sponges.

We have all seen them. They are for sale on the street in all parts of the city. The south side of Union Square is one of their favorite haunts. They are very pretty to look at—so white and clean and nice, and withal so wonderfully cheap. The happy purchaser feels that he has made a point on the grasping druggist who sells the same article at fifty cents, and goes on his way rejoicing. One thing is evident on the face of the matter, either the druggist or the five cent man is a swindler.

A case recently came to our knowledge that is so good an illustration of the effects of a short sighted economy that we cannot forbear giving our readers the benefit. A visitor at the house of a friend in this city noticed one day that the three youngest children of the family, and also the nurse, had a peculiar affection of the eyes, which were noticeably swollen and bloodshot. He inquired the cause, but the mother did not know—thought it was a little thing which would soon pass off. The visitor's curiosity was excited, however, and being of a logical and investigative turn of mind, he came to the conclusion that the cause of the trouble must be something in the nursury and probably in the bathing arrangements. Upon looking further he found one of these bleached sponges. He asked the mother where she got it, and the reply was that it was a great bargain, and been had picked up at a five cent counter. That was enough to explain the whole matter. If you will take the trouble to smell one of these cheap sponges, you will find that there is about it an oder of chloride of lime. The chloride of lime is useful to disinfect them. They need disinfection, because they have been used in hospitals, for washing out wounds, and in other ways imaginable, and then thrown away, perhaps, to be picked up, bleached, and sold to economical persons who wish to get a great bargain. More details might be given, but perhaps this short statement of the case is sufficient. If the Board of Health were in the habit of paying any attention to little matters affecting the public hygiene, we would suggest to them to put a stop on this five cent nuisance.—New York Mail and Express.

Timely Hints to Husbandmen.

One of the best spring vegetables is spinach It is very hardy and before the snow is gone it gives us an agreeable taste of the coming vegetables. Like the turnip it requires rich ground to do very well. It is best to sow it broadcast, raking it in when sown, and if possible in a garden, rolling it It will soon come up and reach some considerable size before frost. When frost comes the spinach bed should be covered with straw, or some other litter, keeping it down with poles. The plant is hardy enough without this protection; but as the object is early vegetables, the earliness is assisted by this covering. There is at least two weeks of difference in the value of a crop covered and one left to take its chances. The covering need not be deep. It may be laid over so that the earth can be seen here and there through it. If the heaviest of the sun is shut out, that is all that is wanted; for it is the sun in winter pouring its rays on the frost covered plants that seem to do the harm, so it is as much the shade as the straw that brings the benefit. By sowing the latter part of this month or the beginning of September it will produce an autumn crop; but for spring use it should be sown the latter part of September or the first week in October.—Germantown Telegraph.

The gold annually taken from Siberian mines is estimated to be worth $6,000,000. The first discovery of the metal in that country was made at the beginning of this century. The average cost of an expedition in search of gold is estimated at $3,000. Therefore, only capitalists can indulge in the luxury of experiments. One of the principal operators is said to have spent a quarter of a million before finding any ore. The miners are paid only $3 a month, with board and lodging. The sale of liquor is forbidden within twelve miles from each shaft, that discipline may be maintained. The number of mines has largely increased since the second quarter of the present century, but that period was the most prosperous in the history of Siberian mining. The labor of the serfs then cost next to nothing though the pay of the workmen is now pitiably small.

Sweeter than Sorghum.

A Virginia lady caught her husband in the act of kissing a pretty colored girl, who had been recently employed as nurse. She said nothing to him, but, summoning the girl before her that evening, asked: "What were you doing with Mr B. when I saw you this morning, Eliza?" "Nuffin," was the truthful answer. "Very well, then," continued her mistress, impatiently, "what was he doing to you?" "I dunno, 'deed I don't, missus, but it was a heap nicer than 'lasses."

THE PUREST AND BEST.

Remedy Ever Made.—It is Compounded from Hops, Malt, Buchu, Mandrake, and Dandelion.

The oldest, best, most renowned and valuable medicine in the world, and in addition it contains all the best and most affective curative properties of all other remedies, being the greatest liver regulator, blood purifier, and life and health restoring agent on earth.

It gives new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To clergymen, lawyers, literary men, ladies, and all whom sedentary employments cause irregularities of the Blood, Stomach, Bowels, or Kidney's, or who require an appetizer, tonic and mild stimulant, it is invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without being intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, or what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable use the bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing, at a moderate cost Ask your druggist or physician. Do not suffer yourself or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

If you have lameness in the loins, with frequent pains and aches; numbness of the thigh; scanty, painful and frequent discharge of urine, filled with pus, and which will turn red by standing; a voracious appetite and unquenchable thirst; harsh and dry skin; clammy tongue, often darkly furred; swollen and inflamed gums; dropsical swelling of the limbs; frequent attacks of hiccough; inability to void the urine, and great fatigue in attempting it—you are suffering from some form of Kidney or Urinary Complaint, such as Bright's Disease of the kidneys, stone or inflammation of the bladder, gravel and renal calculi, diabetes, stranguary stricture and retention of the urine, and Hop Bitters is the only remedy that will permanently cure you.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunken nostrum, but the purest and best medicine ever made, and no person or family should be without it.

Don't risk any of the highly lauded stuff with testimonials of great cures, but ask your neighbor, druggist, pastor or physicians what Hop Bitters has and can do for you and test Aug.

Yours for Health

POSITIVELY CURED BY
Benson's Capcine Porous Plasters.
Reasons Why they are Preferred to All Other Porous Plasters or External Remedies:
First.
Because they possess all the merit of the strengthening porous plaster, and contain in addition thereto the newly discovered powerful and active vegetable combination which acts with increased rubefacient, stimulating, sedative and counter irritant effects.
Second.
Because they are a genuine pharmaceutical preparation, and so recognized by the profession.
Third.
Because they are the only plasters that relieve pain at once.
Fourth.
Because they will positively cure diseases which other remedies will but even relieve.
Fifth.
Because over 2000 physicians and druggists have voluntarily testified that they are superior to all other plasters or medicines for external use,
Sixth.
Because the manufacturers have received the only medals ever given for porous plasters.
